Information for Gold Coast general practices

ISSUE: November 2017

www.healthygc.com.au

A great deal of work is underway at Gold Coast Health to address the issues of fragmented and incomplete communications between healthcare providers to avoid patient harm. This is supported by an overall campaign that emphasises the importance of effective communication.

Clinical handover formalises the transfer of responsibility and accountability for the care of a patient, and with this in mind Gold Coast Health launched the 'Pass the Baton' campaign in August 2017 to promote the significance of an effective clinical handover in the delivery of safe, high quality and patient-centred care.

As with sports relay teams, handover is critical in health and every team member has their own job to do. Handovers can dictate how well patients are transferred from one department, team or service to the next. When handovers are managed well, there is seamless transition in transfers, discharges, referrals, shift-to-shift handovers and escalation of deteriorating patients.

In the upcoming months Gold Coast Health will focus on key episodes of handover starting with a focus on the patients discharge to the community. Discharges from a Gold Coast Health service requires timely, accurate transfer of patient's information to patients/consumers, GPs and other health professionals to ensure continuity of care and reduce risk of rebound admissions.

Documented and structured clinical handover processes are in place at Gold Coast Health to ensure reliable and effective clinical handover occurs. The development of the TrakDS system for reporting compliance with completing discharge summaries within expected time frames is another tool helping to make a real difference to the completion and distribution of discharge summaries .

In early November Gold Coast Health will 'Pass the Baton' to the community by promoting the association and links between the health service and our community's general practices, aged care facilities and other organisations. The goal of this exercise is to ensure we're working together to achieve effective transfer of responsibility and accountability for patient care.

Supporting GPs and General Practice

GOLD COAST

An Australian Government Initiative

Dr David Rowlands
Gold Coast Primary Health
Network (GCPHN) Board Chair

As we head into the final months of the year, our activities and work show no signs of slowing down. During November, we have lots of events and opportunities for GPs and general practice staff, including partnering with

Gold Coast Health in a series of multidisciplinary working groups to develop agreed models of care in key clinical areas for both General Practice and the HHS, and several professional events for GPs, practice managers, practice nurses and reception staff. We encourage all of you to take advantage of these events before the year comes to a close. More information is available at www.healthycg.com.au/ProfessionalEvents

COPD Awareness Day is fast approaching on the 15 November and GCPHN can assist your practice in managing COPD patients through use of CAT4 (Clinical Audit Tool). If you are interested, please see further details in the World COPD Day article below.

The Pass the Baton campaign from Gold Coast Health is underway and will soon spread into the primary care sector via general practices, aged care facilities and other organisations. This exercise aims to highlight the importance of effective transitions of care between clinicians, ensuring we are all working together to achieve effective transfer of responsibility and accountability for patient care.

GCPHN hosted a Get Set for the Games workshop at the end of October and this was well-received by participants (including myself), who found the information most valuable in understanding how the Games will affect their usual operations and how to plan for it. Practices are encouraged to familiarise themselves with up-to-date Commonwealth Games information and ensure GPs are subscribed to the GP Bulletin, which will have regular updates as information comes to light: www.healthycg.com.au/GPsignup

I am also pleased to report that GPs have started using the QLD Provider Portal, which provides access to public hospital information including appointment records, test results, treatment and discharge summaries and medication details. Feedback has been positive so far and GPs are encouraged to register for access and to report any feedback to Gold Coast Health.

Dr Lisa Beecham
General Practice Gold Coast
(GPGC) Board Chair

There are some exciting times ahead for the Gold Coast Health community. GPGC is proudly partnering with GC PHN and the GC HHS in conjunction with several other key stakeholders to establish and run the Integrated Care

Alliance group to oversee a comprehensive integrated health approach to helping innovate patient care here on the Gold Coast. We aim to be part of this World Class Health System, but we need input from the whole health community here on the Coast. Over the next few months there will be opportunities to get involved with committees and working groups set up with the aim to drive innovative change. These workgroups are rolling out in 5 areas to start with. (See page 1) Often in General Practice things are thrust upon us but this is a great chance to develop from the ground up innovative ways of delivering better outcomes for our patients and staff who work in health Care, so look out for these advertised positions and come along.

GPGC is holding an Education and Networking event on Saturday 11 November at GCPHN offices with updates on Being the Doctor's Doctor, Cervical screening, Travel medicine and skin cancer diagnostic challenges. Come along and learn in a relaxed environment.

Lastly don't forget to come along to GPGC's AGM on Friday 1 December at the Arts Centre starting at 6:30pm. All members should have received their email with details on this and submitting any motions and nominations. The formal part of the AGM should be quite short and then we have a guest speaker Rachel Syers who is a writer and journalist speaking.

We will be having drinks and canapes, and it is also an opportunity for members to let GPGC know what they want us to deliver for 2018 and beyond. Any feedback or questions please email admin@gpgc.com.au

Getting set for the Commonwealth Games

On Tuesday 24 October, the Get Set for the Commonwealth Games travel advice workshop was held at GCPHN. The Get Set for the Games team spoke to participants about the temporary challenges and impact the 2018 Games could have on local businesses, what it means for staff and customers, as well as advice on how to develop a customised Travel Action Plan to cope with these changes.

You can visit getsetforthegames.com/events or contact 1800 531 585 or business@getset2018.com

QLD Health Provider Portal

Better connecting GPs and public hospitals

A reminder that GPs can now register for read only access to Queensland Health Provider Portal (HPP) providing them to view public hospital information including appointment records, radiology and laboratory results, treatment and discharge summaries, and demographic and medication details of their patients. Register for access to the HPP here: <https://www.health.qld.gov.au/clinical-practice/database-tools/health-provider-portal>

A GP's experience

Dr Michael Pearcy from On the Park General Practice is one of the GPs who has begun using the HPP and reported to Gold Coast Health (GCH) that he has found his experience with the portal extremely useful.

"I've found it invaluable for finding missing information on the hospital files of my patients. In fact I used it again this morning to find a stress-ECHO result," said Michael.

Dr Michael Pearcy
On the Park General Practice

Dr Pearcy also noted that the initial registration is made easy if you log-in via your Google account (if you have one). "If you do it this way, you can then get an access code by SMS and you're straight into the HPP."

Michael did mention that the only downside he experienced was that the system can time-out if you stay inactive for too long, so to keep this in mind when using the system.

Remember, you can register for access to the HPP here: <https://www.health.qld.gov.au/clinical-practice/database-tools/health-provider-portal>

The service is available 24 hours a day, every day of the year. Exploring use and management of opioids in primary care

Exploring use and management of opioids in primary care Prescription drug abuse is a rising problem in Australia and pharmaceutical drugs have been the most frequent contributors to overdose deaths. Australia's Annual Overdose Report 2017 highlights that accidental overdose from opioids continues to overshadow accidental overdose from other types of drugs. Proactive management in general practice is key to reducing the harm experienced by patients. From February 2018 medications containing codeine will become prescription only and these changes will directly impact on general practice.

Over the coming months GCPHN will provide information to GPs about these changes. A specific event will be held in February giving GPs the opportunity to discuss key areas of concern in relation to opioid dependence and withdrawal with Gold Coast Hospital and Health Service (HHS) addiction specialists and the implementation of changes with Queensland Pharmacy Guild.

Managing changes to access OTC codeine

In December 2016, the Therapeutic Goods Administration (TGA) made the decision that medications containing codeine such as Panadeine, Nurofen Plus and some cold and flu tablets will only be available with a prescription from 1 February 2018.

Codeine's rescheduling is an important opportunity for all Australians to start a conversation about how to best manage and treat pain. The new Script Wise website seeks to provide some key resources around starting this conversation. To find out more visit <http://www.scriptwise.org.au/codeine/>

Cancer Screening

Renewal of the National Cervical Screening Program will be implemented in December

The Renewal of the National Cervical Screening Program will be implemented on 1 December 2017.

The two-yearly Pap test for women aged 18 to 69 will change to a five yearly human papillomavirus (HPV) test for women aged 25 to 74. Women will be due for the first Cervical Screening Test two years after their last Pap test. The changes include:

- women will be invited when they are due to participate via the National Cancer Screening Register
- the Pap smear will be replaced with the more accurate Cervical Screening Test
- the time between tests will change from two to five years
- the age at which screening starts will increase from 18 years to 25 years
- women aged 70 to 74 years will be invited to have an exit test.

Women of any age who have symptoms such as unusual bleeding, discharge and pain should see their health care professional immediately. HPV vaccinated women still require cervical screening as the HPV vaccine does not protect against all the types of HPV that cause cervical cancer.

Until the renewed National Cervical Screening Program is implemented, women aged between 18 and 69 years who have ever been sexually active should continue to have a Pap test when due. Read more here: <https://healthygc.com.au/Resources/Population-Health/Cancer.aspx#9696>

My Health Record security recommendations

We all understand the importance of health prevention activities – it is much better to avoid illness than have to cure it. It's just the same with information technology (IT) – it is much better to secure your IT rather than deal with the consequences of not having done so. There are a number of things we can do to help secure the health information we handle, and at the same time help to protect against reputational and financial loss associated with cyber security threats.

The Australian Digital Health Agency recommendations:

- use antivirus and firewall software (such as an internet security suite) – and enable automatic updates
- use password protection for all devices (e.g. computers, tablets and mobile phones)
- back up your data regularly to a removable storage device which is stored separately from your computer
- don't open suspicious email attachments, and don't click on links within an email (type the address into your internet browser window instead)
- be aware of the latest online scams – review information on the Stay Smart Online website Stay Smart Online and subscribe to the alert service to receive regular updates.

Practice Tips

1 RACGP PLAN (Planning, Learning and Need)

In the 2017-2019 triennium, the RACGP have increased focus on reflective learning practices. As a result, the QI & CPD program has introduced a compulsory component where GPs will now self identify areas of learning and needs based on their own priorities and the needs of their patients and community.

Part of GPs requirement to meet the plan is to analyse your own practice data. An easy method in which to do this is to use the CAT4 Tool which includes an RACGP PLAN report. If you already have access to CAT 4 you can use the CAT4 Roadmap (View Chapter 9), for an easy step by step guide to find this. If you do not have access to CAT4 please email practicesupport@gcphn.com.au

The RACGP Clinical Indicators can also aid GPs to complete the RACGP PLAN by giving examples of possible audits that can take place. You can view the Clinical Indicators on our website: https://www.healthygc.com.au/Resources/Practice-Support/Data-Management-\(Clinical-Audit-Tools-CAT\).aspx#10311.aspx#10311)

2 Quarterly data reports available

Gold Coast PHN circulates quarterly data reports to practices submitting data using CAT Plus software and participating in Tiers 2. This is part of GCPHN's quality improvement initiatives and provides participating practices with valuable insight into their data quality and the health of their practice population.

Participating practices should have now received their October Data Reports on Diabetes. In case you missed it, be sure to check out this sample report on our website <https://www.healthygc.com.au/CAT>. The second page includes handy tips and more information on managing diabetes in practice. These reports are generated using CAT Plus which GCPHN can provide free to practices with compatible software. If you have not received one, please contact your Practice Support Officer or head to healthygc.com.au for more information.

If you have received your Diabetes Data Report, please remember to provide us with feedback <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/KK7SY6W>

3 Interested in participating in focused activities to improve patient outcomes?

Are you currently involved with GCPHN Practice Support at a Tier 1 or 2 level, but are looking for more focused support? If so, your practice could become a Tier 3 Level practice. Tier 3 practices continue to receive access to Cat Plus, and as an addition, receive assistance from their practice support officer to identify and implement targeted process and system improvements from a data quality and patient outcomes perspective. Areas of focus include accreditation (first time accredited), diabetes, prevention, CKD, COPD and CHD.
